Grants Pass V. Johnson Update

Grants Pass V. Johnson

- Grants Pass v. Johnson is an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States of the ruling issued by the 9th District Court of the United States in the case of Johnson v. Grants (2022) pass which built from the Martin v. Boise (2018) ruling.
- The case was heard on April 22, 2024 and the decision was issued on June 28, 2024.
- The matter within Grants Pass V. Johnson was whether it is considered cruel and unusual punishment, under the 8th Amendment of the US Constitution, to not allow homeless people to sleep within public space.
- The argument in the case was based on two previous rulings Robinson v. California and Powell v. Texas which established a prohibition of criminalization of a status.

- The oral arguments at the Supreme Court also included conversations regarding time, place and manner and how and whether those should be considered within the ruling.
- The decision released was 6-3 in favor of the appeal made by Grants Pass. The majority opinion was that the Grants Pass public sleeping ordinance does not violate the 8th amendment as interpreted as it applying to penalties after a criminal conviction and not prior as well as that homelessness is not a protected class as the Grants Pass ordinance applies to all people not just those experiencing homelessness.
- This ruling means that jurisdictions can chose to adopt ordinances that ban or restrict sleeping in public spaces. It does not mean that jurisdictions must or should do so
